

The Adventures of Yani: Thoughtful

Author: Nick Brooks

Editor: Milana Edwards

Copyright 2016

All rights reserved. No part of this publication may be reproduced or transmitted in any form or by any means electronic or mechanical including photocopy, recording or any information storage and/or retrieval system without written permission of the publisher.

SCHOOL

I can always be thoughtful at school. To be thoughtful means to be kind to others.

People who are thoughtful care about the people around them. When I'm thoughtful I make all of my friends happy. I make myself happy too!

I can be thoughtful by sharing materials with my friends.

I can be thoughtful by using words like please and thank you.

I can be thoughtful by helping a friend up if he or she falls.

I can be thoughtful by playing with a friend if he or she feels left out.

I love being thoughtful! How can you be thoughtful at school?

Home

I can be thoughtful at home, just like at school. To be thoughtful at home means I'm thinking about my family and how I can help them.

When I'm thoughtful to my family it reminds them of how much I love them!

I can be thoughtful at home by helping my mom cook.

I can thoughtful at home by taking my dad some water when he's thirsty.

I can be thoughtful at home by not disturbing my baby sister when she's asleep.

I can be thoughtful at home by setting the table for dinner.

All set! How can you be thoughtful at home?

community

I can be thoughtful in my community just like at home and at school.
Being thoughtful in your community means treating your neighborhood and community members with respect.

When you're thoughtful to others, they will be thoughtful to you!

I can be thoughtful in my community by throwing my trash away in the trash can, not on the ground. That would be littering.

I can be thoughtful in my community by using my quiet voice in the library.

I can be thoughtful in my community by reporting danger if I see it.

I can be thoughtful in my community by helping community members.

How can you be thoughtful in your community?

